Headline:
Sunshine and showers. Some heavy and thundery downpours.

Today:
Unsettled weather with scattered showers throughout the region, some locally heavy and thundery. Showers easing later in the day, and cloud cover reducing to give longer sunny spells. Winds gusty. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Tonight:
Becoming mostly dry with a few clear spells during the evening. However, cloud increasing overnight with further showery rain arriving later, perhaps heavy. Remaining breezy. Minimum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Saturday:
Outbreaks of rain, some heavy giving way to another very showery day. Some of the showers heavy with local thunder. Brighter spells between showers in the afternoon. Still breezy. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Showers continuing, some heavy and potentially thundery, with some sunny spells on Sunday. Monday and Tuesday seeing progressively drier periods, although some showers still expected, especially on Monday.
